Verb Review

We spent quite a bit of time in the last year on verb tenses, particularly the conditional and the past habitual. I'm sure we have all gotten a bit rusty since then, but that doesn't mean we have to spend a couple of months in review to polish things up. I'm thinking that we might try quick refreshers on various subjects here and there to keep those memory traces active.

So here's an attempt to freshen up our verb forms. The list at the bottom has slots for all of the unique forms of the five main tenses/moods, and above the list are conjugated verb forms. Simply write the letters of the verb forms (more than one of each) in the appropriate blanks in the list.

See how far you can get without looking things up, and then look up what you need to.
